

Paolo Beria_Project

Titre du projet : Long-distance transport, between planing and liberalisation

The collaboration is aimed at establishing a durable collaboration with the hosting institution on the topics of long-distance transport, a topic that both parts have been studying with continuity.

More precisely, the collaboration will touch the following points:

- i. The liberalisation processes of rail and coach industry
- ii. The impacts of competition on demand
- iii. Pricing under differently competitive environments
- iv. Liberalisation and European cohesion. The geopolitics of transport
- v. Long-term sustainability of competition

The visiting period will be devoted to share visions and knowledge on the topics and prepare a common publication. It could take the form of a comparison between French and Italian long-distance market asset or something more general, according to available data.

During the period, the visiting is available for presenting at internal or open workshop, as well as giving lectures on the issue.