Scientific Activities of Sean QUINN

Regarding his professional background Sean QUINN is formally being asked to participate in the scientific activities of LEJEP and the School of Law.

He is being asked to teach in the domain of Tort Law and Human Rights as it relates to his specializations. In addition, he will be asked to share knowledge and experience based on his research and employment relating to migration law.

He is preparing a publication for the International Review in Compliance and Business Ethics directed by Roxana Family (LexisNexis publishing).

He is an Alumnus of the LL.M. Program and supports the growing international reputation of this LL.M. by staying closely involved in academic and research activities.

Finally, as Sean QUINN is connected to University of Maine School of Law, an important partner for the School of Law Cergy-Pontoise, working with him will strengthen this partnership. He will also participate in the selection of the outgoing students to Maine School of Law.

He has been invited on a date between January and April 2015.
